

Former DI Civilian Police Advisor Honored at CIVPOL Alumni Association Event

The Defense of Freedom Medal was presented on February 10, 2009, to William “Ron” Little, a former civilian police advisor with DynCorp International who was wounded in Iraq in 2006. The awards ceremony was organized by the CIVPOL Alumni Association (CAA) following their board meeting in Washington, DC. The CAA is a non-profit, international community-based organization founded in 2007 and dedicated to providing international law enforcement officers a community of residents. The association provides continuing education presentations and workshops led by law enforcement professionals at the federal, state, county, and local levels and advocates benefits and services for all CIVPOL officers and their families. The U.S. Department of State Bureau for International Narcotics and Law Enforcement Affairs (INL) manages the international Civilian Police Program.

Michael Warren of DynCorp International also received a special award from CAA in recognition of his contribution to the establishment of the organization.
